Store Open Evenings.

HARRIS & SHAFER respectfully request the honor of your attendance all next week at their annual Christmas opening of High-class Jewelry, Precious Stones, Watches, Bric-a-Brac, Cut Glass, Sterling Silver, etc., suitable for gift giving.

It is with a high appreciation of the responsibility imposed upon us by the great esteem and confidence accorded our establishment for so many years that we invite you to pass judgment on the thousands of beautiful gift goods we have gathered for this Christmas.

Special attention is directed to the superb line of Ladies' Fancy Watches -with enameled and jeweled backs -and to the unrivaled display of Men's Solid Gold and Silver Watches, in both the Swiss and American movements-probably the most extensive and most complete collection of Watches ever shown under one roof in Washington.

We feel sure that the magnificent display of fine Diamond, Ruby and Sapphire Rings and Pendants will incite your admiration and merit your heartiest commendation. The showing is strictly confined to the most perfect of gems - scientifically mounted so as to bring out their fullest beauty and brilliancy.

Other notable features of the Christmas display are the immense assortments of Fine Toilet Goods-Silver-mounted Cut Glass Wearthe new French Clocks-Sterling Silver Table Wear-and Ladies' and Gentlemen's Fine All-silk Umbrellas.

The store will remain open evenings until Christmas.

see the interiors of many charming homes. The hospitalities have been incessant, and although there was a little luli yesterday it is only following the general custom a the Christmas holidays come nearer. Host esses who have taken advantage of this month for special entertainments have been rewarded, although disappointment has fallen to a few who were particularly anxious to number among their guests their new acquaintances among the official families. The cessation of social life at the White House, or rather the postponemen of the date for its official start, is very generally regretted, and while the reason for the President's action admit of no criticism whatever, the fact that the New Year will begin with this gloom must be greatly deplored. The cabinet families must abide by what obtains at the White House, and the Vice President and his wife, while not included in this category, the same reasons. However, when the offiical season does begin, January 19, it will be of such a pleasant character that early quiet will no longer be a topic of com The opera season was all that was anticipated and formed the leading feature of the week's entertainment.

The luncheons and teas were great successes and in the homes especially noted for cordiality were events worthy of many pleasant thoughts in the future. Next week the program is well diversified and popular hostesses will welcome their friends to dinners, dances, luncheons and teas, before all guided days for the cordinary of the control of fore all quiets down for the joys of one's own hearthstone on Christmas day. The Sons of Veterans gave a hop last right, which was greatly enjoyed. The veterans' hall was festooned with flags, and the music was sprightly and enjoyed. The up-to-date young woman in Washington has returned to short dresses. The rainy-day costume, as it is understood in other cities, and which has awakened any amount of discussion, favorable and othe wise, and whose expenerts have formed themselves in clubs to popularize hygienic dress, has become almost general in use in this city, with no fuss and bother at

The short dress is not confined to rainy Gays; it is the every-day walking costume of those who like the freedom and easy movements it makes possible and who see no reason to make any particular excitement over a matter the necessity of which is so obvious. The bicycle, which has had so much to do with changes in wocan's attlre, has wrought this revolution also. The golf links have had something to do with it, too; but there are probable. ably hundreds who never enjoy either of these sports, who will welcome the loss of three or four inches of their skirt lengths and a corresponding decrease in the width, which Dame Fashion has ordained even for the long dresses this year.

The young woman, and the old one, too letween the hem of her skirt and her ankles, has been the conservative expres-sion of this emancipation from bedraggied skirts on rainy days the past two winters but the short walking dress is away ahead of that. It has been no uncommon thing the past week to see the women who are generally considered the best dressed in society shopping and walking, either morn-ing or afternoon, in dresses which just hide from view the two or three upper buttons of their boots, and give the ankle an easy of their boots, and give the ankle an easy movement, which, once enjoyed, is not apt to be willingly given up for the long skirt. Walking is fashionable again. There is no doubt of it, and the young woman who has wheeled and played golf over hills and hollows is better able to join the ranks of pedestrians than she was before muscular exertion became the style.

The new walking dress must not hinder exertion became the style.

The new walking dress must not hinder the movements, consequently while its length is a matter of first concern, its width and weight are two other considerations of equal importance. One of the handsomest young ladies in the West End was out for a walk and a talk one afternoon last week with one of the brainiest men in Washington's winter colony. Both are good walkers, and, needless to say, equally talkers. Except for the swing in the lady's skirt, her costume gave as little resistance to the wind as did that of her companion. In length it revealed sturdy, strong ankles incased in well-fitting buttoned boots. As the couple climbed the Connecticut avenue hill the young lady, whose face was animated and her eyes sparkling, never appeared to better advantage.

de15&18.2t OPPOSITION WILL DISSOLVE.

When the Hawalian Trenty is Discursed in Executive Session.

It is said that when the Hawaiian treaty is discussed in executive session immediately after the holidays and facts in the possession of the friends of annexation are presented to the Senate, the opposition will be apt to melt away rapidly. There is an element of opposition that cannot be shaken by anything, but very many who oppose the treaty do not occupy this position, and these, it is expected, will be won over when all the facts are presented.

Some of the important international phases of the question have not been presented to them at all, and are said to be of a character that can more appropriately be discussed in executive session. It is said to be a fact that the Hawaiians who are here opposing the treaty are operating in the interest of the defunct monarchy. It is represented that plans have been laid ac-cording to a broad general scheme to have the monarchy restored through the assist-ance of Great Pritain, if they succeed in defeating the treaty, England to assume a projectorate over the new monarchy and protectorate over the new monarchy and practically to take possession of the islands. It is said that when the facts in this connection are fully presented to the Senate, it can hardly help making a de-

Senate, it can hardly help making a decided impression upon the opposition.

Members of the committee have by no means given up hope of the ratification of the treaty, and they intend to persist in that p.an in preference to switching off to the passage of a resolution of annexation. It is pretty well established now that the resolution plan would be successful, but it resolution plan would be successful, but it would necessarily be a more cumbersome
